Comment / Story :

Hello "Auntie Karen"

Thank you for taking another step in talking and warning people about the traffic on our roads! I hope more and more people will be involved in this and spread the word out. It is for our own safety and our children's as well. We all want to go home and be with our families but unfortunately a mistake on the roads can cost a life or more. I work with people who have suffered brain injuries in car accidents and it is scary to see how some of them will NEVER have a normal life. With that I mean, some of them will never be able to live on their own, have friends or manage a job. You're never the same once you have been involved in a car crash! The family of the injured one is readjusting to the situation and it's not easy!

Thank you once again for taking another step and I hope your work will bring safety to all of us on the roads by being aware of our own driving! A good day!

Mariana
